

Once upon a time, in a country far, far away, there lived a poor tailor with his wife and their son, Aladdin. The tailor worked with his sewing  needle and thread all day, making trousers, coats and beautiful scarves. Aladdin would rather play with his friends than help his father. <sub>1</sub>

One day, after his father had died, Aladdin was walking through the market when he saw a man who was selling lamps. He had only one coin, so he bought an old and rusty lamp.

“This lamp is magic, my boy, take good care of it”, the salesman said, and he disappeared like magic.
